

Instrument inspection

What your arrival report can contain

This unfilled example explains the report format. No instrument has been inspected for this document. A real report records actual observations, measurements, photographs and the technician responsible.

Instrument & inspection

Order reference / date	Make, model / serial number
Technician / inspection date	Strings, tuning / client preferences

Inspection record

AREA	OBSERVATION / EVIDENCE
Construction	Body, joints, visible damage, previous repairs; reference photographs.
Neck & frets	Relief, fret condition and playability; note test conditions and limits.
Setup measurements	String height at a specified fret, relief and intonation; record units and tuning.
Hardware	Tuners, bridge, nut and moving parts; note condition and operation.
Electronics	Pickup positions, controls and output; record tests actually performed.
Limitations	Mark not tested / not applicable. Never treat an untested area as a pass.

Example only: findings and measurements have not been entered.

Findings & your next step

Photographic evidence

In a real report: instrument overview, identification, observed damage and details relevant to the recommendation. Each photograph carries a caption and a reference used in the inspection record.

Your decision in Orders

- Dispatch in the agreed condition.
- Request a separate quote for additional work.

Download your actual PDF in your Guitar Hunter account after arrival. Your choice is recorded in Orders. A request for further work is not approval of a price.

Optional inspection and basic setup

Free when selected as part of a purchase through SVG. Repairs, replacement parts and restoration require a separate quote and your approval before work starts.

Payment & delivery

SVG buys the instrument after confirming your order payment. Your individual quote specifies delivery cost, insurance scope and estimated timing. Carrier and tracking details appear in Orders when dispatched.

Real report: technician, publication date, revision and order reference.
